Course Description: This course is an introduction to social stratification and primarily to social class. The focus will be on the causes and consequences of social hierarchy in the United States. We will review the social class structure in this country, how it is measured, and what impact it has on the individual. Special emphasis will be placed on the nature of poverty and the mechanisms of social mobility. Both structural/functional and conflict theory will be applied to analyze social class and the student will learn to evaluate social class arrangements for him/herself. Finally, there will be a consideration of relevant social policy, including welfare and educational policies.

Research Paper

Students will research and write a 10-12 page paper (10-12 point font Times Roman) either about the causes, effects, and cures of poverty or about the nature of social mobility. The topic chosen can be contemporary or historic, but your work should be deep rather than broad. The paper must go beyond the issues discussed in class to elucidate the nature of poverty and/or social policies regarding poverty or deal with the mechanisms or scope of social mobility. Make sure your paper is clearly written and well documented. The point of view you choose is up to you, but you must provide evidence to support any position you take. And please number pages.

A paper outline will be due three weeks before the paper itself. This should include anticipated references.

Please note: The paper should be double spaced, with margins of no more than 1.25 inches. The Reference page does not count as a page, nor does the title page. (Nor do pictures). Please number pages. Please hand in hard copy, but also copy to turnitin.com drop box)

The Class Grade will depend equally on three (3) examinations, and the research paper. (Value 25% each). Class attendance and participation will be monitored and also contribute to the final grade. Attendance is further encouraged because the examinations will include materials covered only in class.

I would appreciate hearing from anyone in this class who has a special need which may be the result of a disability. I am reasonably sure we can work out whatever arrangement is necessary, be it seating, testing, or other accommodation. Please see me after class, as soon as possible, if you have such a need.

Academic Integrity: Every KSU student is responsible for upholding the provisions of the Student Code of Conduct, as published in the undergraduate and graduate Catalogs. Section II of this Code addresses the University's policy on academic honesty, including provisions regarding plagiarism and cheating, unauthorized access to University materials, misrepresentation/falsification of University records or academic work, malicious removal, retention, or destruction of library materials, malicious/intentional misuse of computer facilities and/or services, and misuse of student identification cards. Incidents of alleged academic misconduct will be handled through the established procedures of the University Judiciary Program, which includes either an "informal" resolution by a faculty member, resulting in a grade adjustment, or a formal hearing procedure, which may subject a student to the Code of Conduct's minimum one semester suspension requirement.
